

“FARES PLEASE”

London Transport Route 93 in Ewell in the 1950's

"FARES PLEASE" - LONDON TRANSPORT ROUTE 93 IN EWELL IN THE 1950s.

A Routemaster.

Bus travel when I was a child and young person. I have always liked Buses. When I was a child and young adult London Transport Route 93 used to run all the way from Epsom Station to Putney Bridge Station. The Buses were red Double-Deckers and as well as the Driver they had a Conductor. After you had got on the Bus the Conductor would sound "ding-ding" on his or her bell to the Driver, and the Bus would pull away. The Conductor would come to your seat, take your fare, and give you your ticket. The Conductor carried a long rack of separate brightly-coloured tickets for different fares, and the Conductor wore a ticket machine, a badge, and a cashbag. In later years Conductors were given new ticket machines that printed tickets from a long paper roll similar to today. The Conductor would call out the names of Bus stops along his or her route. Our Buses had front engines and you got on and off the Bus by using an open platform at the back of the Bus. There was a box for used tickets on this platform but some children and grown-up Bus ticket collectors would keep theirs. Sometimes an Inspector would get on the Bus at different stops to check Passengers' tickets. A modern type of Bus, similar to the Buses I used to travel on, is being designed and built for use in London soon.

Gb 4608

1	11	26
2	25
3	24
4	23
5	22
6	21
7	20
8	19
9	18
10	17
11	16
12	15
13	14

LONDON TRANSPORT BUSES
Available in colour subject to the availability of the colour and the condition of the vehicle.

Gd 3479

1	10	26
2	25
3	24
4	23
5	22
6	21
7	20
8	19
9	18
10	17
11	16
12	15
13	14

LONDON TRANSPORT BUSES
Available in colour subject to the availability of the colour and the condition of the vehicle.

AT YOUR SERVICE

He does a difficult job with patience and understanding. He is one of 22,000 conductors who issue nearly ten million tickets to travellers on London Transport road vehicles every day.

Conductor's Badge.

London Transport Poster -
At Your Service, by Leo Dowd.

London Transport Bell Punch
Ticket Machine & Tickets(top)
& later Gibson Machine printing Ticket(lower picture).

I am willing to have my story entered onto the local archives and the website and agree to abide by the General Rules (these can be found over the page)

Signed Peter Lemon

Date 5th May 2011

Please hand in this form or post it to History Centre, Ewell Library, Bourne Hall, Spring Street, Ewell, Surrey KT17 1UF.

Alternatively email them to epsomandewelllhc@yahoo.co.uk.

THANK YOU FOR CONTRIBUTING TO THE LOCAL ARCHIVES

Above:- Drawing of London Transport RT-Type Bus on Route 93 Putney Bridge Stn to Epsom Stn, in London Road, Ewell. On Boat Race Days special "To & From The Boat Race"boards were carried. Some Sunday and Bank Holiday journeys were extended to Dorking. In the 1950s Sutton, Putney and Merton Garages ran Buses on Route 93. The Route 93 ran past Nonsuch Park, along the London Road.